

THAW IS ENJOYING PLEASANT OUTING; COULD EASILY FLEE

Has Turned Down Half a Dozen Chances to Escape From Gorham.

HIS "GUARD" A JOKE.

He and Deputy Sheriff Go Fishing and Auto Together Like Chums.

MOUNT MADISON HOUSE, Gorham, N. H., July 20.—Harry K. Thaw, who is quartered here with his secretary and two bodyguards, appointed by the court to see he does not escape, can walk out of this hotel, jump into an automobile and flee practically any time it suits his mood.

Apparently, however, the slayer of Stanford White, whose extradition to New York State and return to the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Matteawan is sought, has no desire to quit Gorham. Whether this is because he believes the courts will ultimately free him or he is content with his surroundings, is problematical.

When the village thawed out last May, White's slayer packed his baggage and came here from Concord with Sheriff Holman A. Drew, in whose charge he had been placed; Deputy Sheriff C. D. Stevens, assistant to Drew, and H. J. Rice, who for some time has acted as Thaw's secretary. A suite of four rooms and bath had been engaged for the party on the third floor of the Mount Madison House, and here they have since enjoyed life pending the next legal move in the famous case.

THAW, LOST IN WOODS, WAITS FOR RESCUERS.

Gorham was selected as a summer headquarters from which to direct Thaw's "liberty campaign," because it is but a few miles from Berlin, the home of Sheriff Drew. The Sheriff is an elderly, stout and good natured official whose duties do not appear to weigh heavily upon him. He spends much time in his chair, but his car has been in the Thaw suite and the balance of his pleasure—usually at home.

Bodyguard Stevens is a bit more attentive to his duties, but his car has not been in the Thaw suite. He has been at the hotel a few days ago when Thaw got lost on a fishing trip. He struck in at one point on Nineteen-Mile brook and Stevens on another. Along about 9 o'clock in the evening, when Stevens had heard of Thaw, the Deputy Sheriff called up the hotel and a searching party was organized.

This was led by Rice. With the aid of lanterns Thaw was found about 2 o'clock in the morning seated on a rock in the middle of the stream, calmly and with good sense waiting for some one to come for him. He was hungry and wet, but not otherwise the worse for his experience.

He might have been drowned in the Maine woods by the hour if he had been so inclined. This episode, as well as others, is pretty good proof that Thaw can escape if he is so minded.

When Thaw first came here all the year round residents evinced great curiosity in the slayer.

BUYS BIG AUTO AND TAKES "GUARD" RIDING.

Visitors from the city are equally curious upon their arrival, but their inquisitiveness shortly subsides. They find Thaw to be very much like the other guests, save that he is somewhat more exclusive. Much of his time is spent in offices he has established in the Noyes Building, centrally located on one of the few streets this little village boasts.

Thaw recently bought a five-passenger car. The report that he mixes with the guests in taking them on his outings is erroneous.

Thaw is too busy with his "liberty campaign" to pay much attention to the guests of this hotel or to the residents of the place.

Every one around Gorham is under the impression that Thaw has an income of $100,000. It is known that he has just come into over $100,000 from his father's estate. The amount of his income has been industriously and mysteriously circulated, but not by Thaw. Whether the figure may be true or not, the natives hoped he would. He pays well for what he gets, but he doesn't want much.

Thaw hasn't had a drink since he came here, although he has had plenty of opportunities. He is now a total abstainer. His one vice, if it can be called a vice, is smoking.

Outside the fact that he doesn't drink and is more moderate in his speech, Thaw doesn't seem to have changed much since the days when he was a well known character on Broadway.

SUMMER SCHOOL POPULAR.

Columbia has a Registration of 5,025 for the Session.

Registration for the summer season at Columbia University, which was held yesterday, shows 5,025 students, against 4,630 last year, 3,602 in 1912, and 2,973 in 1911. First plans were to accommodate all the women students in Brooks Hall, but there was not room enough, and Furnald

Hall, another Barnard dormitory, has also been filled.

In addition to the regular college subjects, features of the summer session include band concerts, organ recitals, performances by the University Chorus and the Cornub Players, and excursions in and about the city.

DEPENDABLE PROPRIETARY MEDICINES

It must be admitted by every fair-minded intelligent person that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for thirty years and to-day hold a record for thousands upon thousands of actual cures, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.
